SUPPORTING SIBLINGS OF CHILDREN WITH AUTISM

Early Days can help you

Early Days workshops are for mothers, fathers and other family carers of children six and under who have an Autism Spectrum Disorder (ASD) or who are in the assessment and diagnosis process.

Early Days is funded by the Australian Government under the Helping Children with Autism package. The Siblings workshop is conducted in collaboration with RMIT University as part of a research project into sibling wellbeing.

What can Early Days Siblings Workshop offer?

- Share your concerns about what caring for a child with ASD means for siblings in your family
- Learn strategies for promoting the wellbeing of all children in your family
- Lunch and light refreshments provided
- Childcare is not provided

Invitation to be involved in a Research Study

- You will be invited to fill in some questionnaires about your experiences as a parent before and after the workshop.
- The aim is to find out whether the workshop makes a difference for you and the siblings in your family.
